

WWC H.S. – Cape May County, NJ

ABOUT THE SCHOOL

WWC High School is a four-year co-educational secondary (9-12 grades) school of the Diocese of Camden. Founded in 1948, WWC High School is accredited by the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools State of New Jersey Diocese of Camden; and continues to present a challenging curriculum in the expectation that all students will continue their education and be of service to all people.

LOCATION

The school is located in North Wildwood, in Cape May County, New Jersey, midway between the Atlantic Ocean and the bay Cape May County is the most southern county in the state.

ACADEMIC PROGRAM

WWC High School offers a comprehensive college preparatory curriculum for students. On average historically, 95% of all Wildwood Catholic High School students move on to higher education. In order to help students not only prepare for admission but for success in higher education, WWC employs a holistic approach to the education of the young person—we strive to empower not only students' minds, but also their bodies, hearts, and souls as well.

The school challenges students to strive for personal excellence in all facets of life: academic, physical, social, emotional, and spiritual. Thus, students are not only enabled to live their present lives to the fullest, but are also equipped to continue their education and to assume vocation, career, and civic responsibilities.
